HOTEL SURVEY DISCLOSES SENTIMENT FOR IT AND FEWER ROOMS HERE

Sharpe Site Still Favored—Six Hotel Rooms Per Thousand Population Here Against Ten Per Thousand In Most Cities.

The report of the survey made by John P. Mack, of the General Organization Company of Chicago, regarding a new hotel project for the city of Kingston was submitted to the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce Friday night at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Broadway and East O'Reilly street.

The report goes in detail as to the increase in tourist and other transient traffic in this city, and the investigation found that there is a preponderance of sentiment in favor of the construction of a new hotel. The site which is generally considered most adapted for a new hotel is the Sharpe property at Clinton and Albany avenues.

Based on the experience of many other cities where new hotel projects have been undertaken successfully, a new hotel tends to stimulate business and to increase the business of existing hotels. When people know there are sufficient hotel accommodations in a city, they travel to that place in larger numbers than otherwise. Conventions cannot be held in a place where there are no hotel accommodations.

Accompanying the report were appendices showing hotel construction in twenty-seven states, the number of hotel rooms in proportion to population, which in most cities is ten to a thousand, while in Kingston it is only six; together with statistics as to construction, costs, etc. A hotel was recommended which would contain one hundred rooms and would be a paying business proposition.

The report will be considered by the directors and all others interested in a hotel project at a meeting to be called in the near future.

DEEPER HUDSON ENDORSED HERE

Chamber of Commerce—All Valley Cities Becoming Interested and Albany is Raising Fund.

The Deeper Hudson movement, a project to secure deepening of the Hudson river where needed so as to afford better means of deepwater transportation to the river cities north of Kingston and increase the general development of all cities along the river, was formally approved by the Chamber of Commerce directors at their regular meeting Friday night.

The Deeper Hudson movement originated in the Capital district, where a fund of $20,000 to be used in investigation, etc., is being raised. Practically every community in the Hudson river valley has become interested and most of the cities were represented at a meeting held at Albany on Monday night which was attended, on behalf of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, by Secretary Louis S. Coe.

AUTO CASES IN SUPREME COURT

Rhodes Repudiates Statement to Troopers That He Changed Number on Cars—Troopers Say Number Had Been Changed on Car Schulte Bought—Waltman Sues Berman for Damages to His Car.

Late in the afternoon the action brought by John Schulte of Highland against the American Alliance Insurance Company was submitted to the jury. The action is brought by Mr. Schulte to cancel an agreement and recover $25 which has been paid defendant upon the agreement.

Schulte purchased of Earl Rhodes of the town of Lloyd an automobile which several months later was said to have been one of a number of stolen automobiles which were located in the vicinity of Highland, where they had been sold by Earl Rhodes, who claimed that he received them from a man in New York city. Some time in October, 1922, Mr. Schulte purchased the car from Rhodes for $500. In February, an insurance adjuster came to Highland with the original owner of a Studebaker car, and identified the car which Mr. Schulte had bought as the car which had been stolen in New York on October 15. The settlement made to the owner was shown to Mr. Schulte and he agreed to purchase the car from the insurance company, which claimed it for a sum of $625. The company agreed to do this as Mr. Schulte had innocently bought the machine which was said to be a stolen machine. He paid $25 down and entered into an agreement to pay the balance at a future date.

Later he became convinced that the machine was not the one which had been stolen and if it was not the machine it was not the property of the insurance company and he refused to pay the balance on the agreement and brings action to have the agreement cancelled.

Mr. Schulte bases his belief that the machine is not the one which the insurance company had made a settlement for because the machine which they paid for was stolen on October 15, 1922, while the machine which he purchased was in Highland a month before that date, and several witnesses have made affidavits to that effect. One witness testified that he saw the machine on the Highland ferry on September 15, and also at the Rhodes garage later that day. Another witness, Snyder, claims that he and his brother looked the machine over at the Rhodes garage before October 5 with the view of purchasing it.

The contention of plaintiff is that even though the machine is a stolen machine and is the machine which was stolen from the original owner, a dress manufacturer in New York city, but was stolen or taken prior to October 15, the day the theft was reported to the police, the insurance company cannot recover from Mr. Schulte but must recover from the original owner from whom the machine was taken prior to the date reported to the police. The original owner testified that while he was attending a concert at Carnegie Hall on October 15 the machine was taken. The contention of plaintiff is that if the machine was stolen or taken from the original owner before that date and not reported to the police until that date there can be no recovery from Schulte.

The owner of the car, purchased an automobile a year before in the springtime and after insuring it for theft used it during the summer and early fall season and then in the late fall it was stolen. Again the next spring the owner purchased a machine for $1,475 and insured it. He used the machine during the summer and early fall and on October 15 he reported that the machine had been stolen. He was paid his claim of $1,450 by the insurance company and later the company claimed the machine which Mr. Schulte bought was the machine which was taken.

Rhodes testified that he had bought the machine from a man in New York city and sold it to Schulte. He also said that the same man had bought up several machines and asked him to store them and sell them for him. He did this and received payment for his services.

He denied that he ever changed a motor number on the machines. State Troopers who called at the Rhodes garage and later at the home secured a signed statement from Rhodes to the effect that he had changed the motor numbers on machines. The car purchased by Schulte the troopers testified had had the number filed off and a new number stamped in.

Rhodes who is under indictment on a charge of receiving stolen goods, testified that he never filed off the numbers or put on new numbers and that he never so stated to the troopers. He said that he signed the statement which was produced in court but did not know what it was and only signed it when he was threatened with arrest. He also claimed that he had been roughly handled by troopers but admitted that he had given them the information in regard to several cars as it appeared in the written and signed document. He denied only that he had changed the motor numbers.

John Eekert and A. W. Lent appeared for plaintiff and Pariser & Garton for the insurance company. At the conclusion of the Highland automobile case an action brought by John D. Waltman of this city against Benjamin Berman of Fleischmanns was taken up. This is a negligence action brought to recover damages which plaintiff claims was done to his Oakland touring car which he claims was struck by defendant's Hudson car

FILLING STATIONS HERE REFLECT GASOLINE SURPLUS

Gasoline prices in this city have again taken a drop. The Standard Oil, The Kingston Oil Co. and the Texas Co. have agreed as to the reduction of gasoline wholesale and retail in this city with the result that gasoline is selling wholesale now at 16 1/2 cents. It formerly sold at 18 cents. The retail price at the filling stations is now 19 cents. It is a long time since gasoline sold as low as this here. Predictions are being made that the surplus stock will bring the price down to 15 cents in the east before spring.

SAYS GASOLINE PRICE IS TOO LOW

Standard Oil President the Speaker—New Drilling Discouraged—Would Welcome Investigation.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 20.—Present prices of crude oil are such as to discourage new drilling, declared Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, in an exclusive statement to International News Service on the recent cuts in gasoline prices announced in eastern states.

"The recent reductions in gasoline prices in eastern states, as I see them," Teagle said, "are a natural result of an over supply with consequent pressure to sell. The surplus production over demand always fixes prices in a free market and lower gasoline quotations are an effort to find an outlet over this surplus. In such a situation a manufacturer cannot always get his costs back."

The Standard Oil head said he welcomed an investigation into the oil industry such as was suggested by Acting Mayor Hubert of New York city.

"The petroleum industry has just been through a government investigation which proved of no value either to the public or the industry," he said. "An honest investigation by intelligent men would show that gasoline prices today are too low for the permanent welfare of the oil industry or the ultimate good of the public."

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS

Today is the last chance to see the excellent bill that has been presented for the last half of this week, at the Orpheum, consisting of six vaudeville acts, featuring Zita the wonder girl of the age. The picture today is "Franklin Farm" and "Shorty" Hamilton in "The Larri Thower," a picture for the entire family.

Nobody who sees "Human Wreckage," the Mrs. Wallace Reid picture, which is to be presented at the Orpheum Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, a film of power and great purpose, is likely to ever be tricked into the dope habit, says Thomas Numan. On trickery, as the story clearly shows, the peddlers and higher-up dealers depend in making victims to whom they may sell the narcotics. Also there is a big vaudeville bill.

"Loyal Lives," a Whitman Bennett production which will be shown at Keeney's Monday and Tuesday, is endorsed by Postmaster General Harry S. New, because it is a story of the unsung heroes of his department.

The vaudeville bill at the Opera House on Friday and Saturday of this week is one of the strongest bills ever offered to local vaudeville patrons. The feature picture "The Woman in Chains," closed the bill. The Opera House offers a treat to its patrons for the first half of the week. The bill is an exceptionally strong one, and the management feels sure that the local patrons will be satisfied with the offering. The feature picture for the first half of the week is John Gilbert in "The Exiles," from the famous story by Richard Harding Davis, an adventurous romance of the souls adrift.

Navy Day Oct. 27.

October 27 has been known for some time as Navy Day, says Edward E. Spafford, department commander of the American Legion, in a letter to county officers and post commanders in which he urges that its observance be secured in every community. October 27 is also the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt.

Register and enroll before 10 to night.

About 8 o'clock in the evening of May 27 of this year a short distance south of Phoenixia, plaintiff claims, that his car was passed by the defendant's car and that in passing his front wheels were struck, causing him to run into a tree, smashing his car. John W. Eekert appears for plaintiff and G. A. Speenburgh for defendant. Defendant denies that he struck the Oakland. Corporal Joseph L. Miller who was stationed at Phoenixia at that time was sworn out of order by defendant. He testified that he examined the cars after the accident and saw no damage to the left wheel of the Oakland which plaintiff claims was damaged by the collision. It was dark when he examined the car he testified. When the Phoenixia Garage where the car was repaired spoke were found out the left front wheel and a mark of a tire was also found upon the rim.

Court adjourned at this point until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

WHEN A NEW VOTER IS NOT A NEW VOTER

So much has been published about certificates of literacy required from new voters that many voters and some election officials seem to have lost sight of the fact that many persons who have never voted are not "new voters" within the meaning of the law and need pass no literacy test.

The last sentence in Section 150 of the Election Law defines a "new voter" as one who acquired the right to vote on or subsequent to January 1, 1922, and has not previously exercised the right. Therefore any person who possessed the right to vote prior to January 1, 1922, even though the right was never exercised, is not a "new voter" within the meaning of the law and is not required to present a certificate of literacy or take a literacy test.

FIFTY TAKE LITERACY TEST

But Four Out of One Hundred Applicants Fail—Belated Ones Still Have Chance at Meagher's Home.

The literacy test for new voters at the high school Friday evening and this morning brought out about fifty applicants. The test was continued to give first voters, who may have registered for the fall election in Kingston after taking a test given by the election officials, a chance to obtain necessary certification from the school authorities, who are the sole authorities to determine the literacy of first voters.

To date there have been a hundred papers received, out of which number there were but four failures. Frank L. Meagher, one of the public school officials conducting the examinations, has certificates at his home, 35 East St. James street, and he will be glad to give the test to anyone who is turned down by the registration board today.

CHARITY BALL NETS CHILD FUND

The ball given at the Armory Friday evening for the benefit of the dependent children of Ulster county, will be a decided success financially as it was socially. Owing to the heavy rain and slippery conditions of the roads many who anticipated attending the ball feared to risk the auto driving, so there was room for comfortable dancing, and delightful music for the same.

The program opened with an orchestral selection that was well applauded, after which Julia Wiseman of Woodstock, the little dancer in dainty French frock of delicate blue tulle with big butterfly bow and carrying a basket of roses, made her appearance. It is said that blue butterflies are very rare, and such dancing as that done by this sweet little girl is just as rare. Aesthetic dancing has been the social fad for so long that anything really out of the ordinary captivates one. In addition to her exceptional grace, her remarkable toe dancing—the real thing—and her childish lack of self-consciousness, little Julia has within her own tiny self a spirit that flashes more like a humming bird than a butterfly, and this originality, this sprightliness was what made her dancing so exceptional. She danced an encore number with orchestral accompaniment, and later, in an exquisite spring-green satin frock with tiny rosebud trimming she gave her own interpretation of The Blue Danube Waltz, rare and was given a real ovation. And then, too, it was a child giving for children.

Another exceedingly pretty number was the "Dance of Pan and the Dryads," given by Miss Otilio Kibbons, as Pan, garbed all in wood-brown with tunic of real goat skin and silver "Pipes of Pan," and the Misses Dorothy MacFadden, Virginia Herdman, Marion Byrne, Fannie Kellier and Priscilla Davis, the Dryads in love with Pan. These wood nymphs wore dainty draperies of pale pink, blue, lavender, green and yellow, flower decked and their dancing was delightful. They counted themselves especially a group of Y. W. C. A. girls.

The bad weather conditions were responsible for one real disappointment on the part of the management of the ball, which they were powerless to remedy. The young lady from New York who was to accompany Miss Britt, the violinist of Woodstock and also John Carlson, the soloist, and Miss Britt were unable to get to Kingston. Consequently Mr. Carlson was left without an accompanist, but the children's dancing was so greatly enjoyed and the general dancing afterward, that no one laid it up to the ball committee that the rest of the program could not be given. Any way the work among the Ulster county children will be greatly helped.

PLEASURE AUTO IN THE DISCARD

It's Now a Passenger Car on State Tax Commission Forms for Registration—Howard Writes About It.

Automobiles are officially recognized by the state of New York as a necessity and not a luxury. The state tax commission has amended its 1924 application blank for the registering of privately owned and privately operated automobiles so that this class of vehicle will be designated "passenger car" instead of "pleasure car."

This change a practice which has been enforced since the first automobile was registered, when cars were actually pleasure cars and used only as a luxury.

In a letter to Edward A. Moree, general manager of the Automobile Merchants' Association of New York, Robert J. Howard, deputy state tax commissioner and director of the motor vehicle bureau, thus describes the reasons for the commission's action on this point:

"The commission has decided upon this action because it agrees with the automobile merchants and the owners of motor cars, that privately owned and privately operated automobiles are, to all intents and purposes, passenger vehicles, that they are necessities and that in the largest proportion they are not luxuries."

When it became known throughout the state that this question was under consideration by the commission, automobile dealers, car owners and manufacturers in all parts of the country interested themselves in the matter and presented to the commission reasons why the change should be made. It was made clearly evident to the commission that the automobile has only very limited use for mere pleasure.

Commenting on the action of the commission, Mr. Moree said that in presenting the desire of the automobile trade for this change, he found the commission most intelligently alive to the needs of the automobile business.

"Business men of the state are to be congratulated on having in Albany a State Tax Commission that endeavors to fit the operation of its various bureaus to the needs of the people," said Mr. Moree. "In his letter to me on this subject, Mr. Howard said that in this, as in all other matters, the commission desires to meet the business interests of the state more than half way in adjusting the practice and procedure of the department to the needs of the people, which the department was created to serve."

"Certainly my contact with the commission on this, and on other matters, has indicated that this statement is amply borne out by the attitude of the commission which at all times has shown an intelligent grasp of the problems entrusted to them and a thorough going desire to cooperate with the automobile trade to the fullest possible extent."

Another change in the application blank is in question No. 5 which, in the present blank, is as follows: "Year of manufacture." The new blank will require the applicant to state "Manufacturer's Year."

This question in the past has caused considerable difficulty. Controversies have arisen and even lawsuits have resulted from the fact that in filling out application blanks for cars sold during the first few months of a year, honestly compelled the dealer who sold the car to state that the car had been manufactured the year previous. The purchaser knew he was getting a new car but when he came to the point of selling this car, it bore the evidence in the owner's license of being a year older than it actually was. "Manufacturer's Year" makes it possible for the dealer or seller of a car manufactured in any month of the year to state honestly in the first three months of each year and still not make the car appear to be a year older than it actually was when it was delivered new.

SKILLYPOT MAKES SAFE VOYAGE TO CONNELLY

With a high tide in the Rondout creek the famous old Skillypot, beached on the flats at Sleightsburgh, was finally floated, and on Friday was towed to Connelly by a motor boat. Former Alderman John A. Fischer, who bought the ancient craft, said the trip up the creek was made without a mishap. Questioned as to whether he was going to dismantle the old ferry he replied that he was not, but that the craft may later be used for ferry purposes. He said he had bought the Skillypot as a speculation.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Berlin, Oct. 20.—The Berlin government today ceased all wage credits to the German workers in the Ruhr officially ending passive resistance against Franco-Belgian occupation.

It is expected that a terrific social and economic crisis may follow as the government has been pouring billions of marks into the Ruhr weekly since it was occupied to support workmen whether they worked or not.

Hugo Stinnes, the industrial and coal magnate, has conferred a second time with General Degoutte, commander of the French army in the Ruhr, regarding working conditions under French occupation. It was learned today. This second conference took place on Wednesday. General Degoutte insisted upon delivery of reparations coal as well as free coal for the railways in occupied territory and the troops.

General Degoutte virtually threatened a coal blockade against unoccupied Germany. Stinnes tried to argue that the French demands were impossible, but Degoutte insisted and the conference ended in a deadlock.

Munich, Oct. 20.—Bavaria today sent a note to Berlin threatening armed resistance if the German state attempts to "violate Bavarian sovereignty."

The Bavarian note was defiant in tone—almost an open challenge.

An open break between Bavaria and Berlin seemed inevitable.

General Von Lossow, commander of the Reichswehr in Bavaria, was summarily dismissed because he failed to obey the order to suppress the Hitlerite newspaper Voelkische Beobachter. Also, Von Lossow refused to heed the recall order from Berlin and paid no attention to Berlin's demand that he resign. His dismissal was sent by special courier by President Ebert at midnight.

An interesting feature of the fight between the Berlin government and Bavaria is that Minister of Defense Gessler is a Bavarian. He is directing Berlin's battle.

Minister Gessler threatened to blockade Bavarian railways, telegraph and the postal service if Munich backs up Von Lossow.

IDENTIFIES DEAD BROTHER'S BODY

Man Found in Rondout Creek Identified as George Freer, Who Was a Patient at Benedictine Hospital.

The body of the man found floating in the Rondout creek on Friday by William H. Lake of South Rondout was identified Friday night at the undertaking parlors of Conner & Valentine, Fair street, as that of George Freer of Abert street. Identification was made by his brother, Benjamin Freer of 270 Abert street. He had been informed that his brother had disappeared from the Benedictine Hospital, where he had been a patient for a week.

According to Benjamin Freer his brother has been in ill health for some time and about a week ago was taken to the hospital for treatment. Friday morning, about 1 o'clock he got out of bed and after partially dressing made his way down a fire escape unnoticed. It is thought that he went directly to the creek and threw himself into the water. When discovered the body had been in the water but a short time.

At first when the body was found it was thought that the man might have met with foul play. This opinion was strengthened when an examination showed very little water in the lungs and the fact that there was nothing found upon the body except a baseball ticket dated back in August, 1922, and a few matches. Dr. Sibley, who made an examination, was of the opinion that death had been caused by heart failure rather than drowning. When Freer jumped into the water, his heart weakened by long illness, was unable to withstand the shock and death was due to this cause rather than drowning, which would explain the small amount of water which was found in the lungs. Coroner Conner made an investigation and at first was unable to learn who the man was. The identification by Benjamin Freer cleared up the mystery.

Funeral services private Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the funeral parlors of Conner & Valentine. Interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MONARCH BUTTERFLY TALKS

"Good-day, Mr. Sun," said the Monarch butterfly.

"You look very happy," he added after a moment.

"I am," said Mr. Sun, as he beamed brightly. "It is so wonderful to be the sun and to look down upon such a lovely world."

"No wonder people say I have a sunny nature! I cannot help but have it!"

"It is interesting to many people to know how the butterflies sleep in the winter," said the Monarch butterfly, "or whether they are all frozen! Or what happens to them! So many people, I've been told, often ask. I wonder, if I told you, Mr. Sun, if you could send around some of your bright rays with the secrets."

Mr. Sun smilingly agreed.

"I'll see that they hear if you tell me what is to be said."

"The Swallowtail Butterflies," said the Monarch, "stay in their chrysalis stage in the winter time. They like those best."

"And the Angle Wings all change into butterflies sometime before they go to sleep, and so they sleep as butterflies. Little Bronze Copper Butterfly spends the winter as an egg. He has lots of growing and changing to do when the spring comes! I wouldn't care for his way," the Monarch said proudly.

"So many people wonder how we disappear when the cold weather comes. In the summer I've often heard people say:

"What becomes of all the butterflies in the winter time?"

"If someone will translate for me into their language I'd like to tell them all of this."

"Most of the butterflies eat a good deal more in the fall so they can be strengthened for the cold winter weather and for their sleep, and most of the great butterfly family spend the winter bedtime as little caterpillars. The Frilltail families sleep as little tiny caterpillars and don't bother to grow their full size until the spring comes when they wake up and continue growing."

"Then there are some families where the grown-ups sleep as butterflies and where the little ones go to bed as caterpillars and don't change into butterflies until the spring comes. The Orange Sulphur and the Clouded Sulphur Butterfly families do this."

"But, oh dear, I must stop talking," the Monarch said, for as he looked about him he found that all the butterflies had disappeared.

"I've never been so late in starting for the South. I must hurry and follow the birds."

"But the butterflies and caterpillars who're staying up North and who're sleeping through the winter will be quite safe and snug. They know where the rocks and crevices are which will be the right places for them. If they're chrysalids they will know how to attach themselves safely with a fine silken cord to a tree, so the old wind won't blow them away."

"Yes, the winter time is the butterflies' bedtime and there are only a few of us who go away and stay awake! But the butterflies sleep at different stages of their growth, some as caterpillars, some as chrysalids and some as full-grown butterflies, as I've said."

"For isn't that sensible? You don't find all boys and all girls of ten years old going to sleep and all boys and all girls of twelve years old not sleeping at all!"

"And as you don't find all boys and girls doing the same just because they're of the same age or the same size—neither do you find butterflies all doing alike!"

"But before I fly off I must sing the Butterflies' Bedtime Lullaby."

The Monarch looked up at Mr. Sun and smiled. Then he sang this song:

In the winter when it's cold
Do not be so very bold!
Do not freeze your pretty wings,
Do not chill your nose and things!
If you're a caterpillar or a butterfly,
In a warm place you must lie.
Covered up with silken threads,
Or in warm and leafy beds
And sleep and sleep and sleep some more,
Such are the butterfly ways as of yore,
And ere I go on my wandering way,
I wish the rest of you all a good-day.
And pleasant dreams and a good winter's rest,
So that when the spring comes you may all look your best.

The restraint of a prescribed diet at times defeats its end by the added attention, and the sense of injury attaching deprivation, which it invites. Judicious neglect is often the better rule for the introvertedly disposed.—Joseph Jastrow

COOKING WITH BRAINS

There is nothing in the field of food so deadly to the appetite as a monotonous diet, and "the sky is the limit" for a cook who can supply plain and intelligent cooking for the plain and intelligent demands of the husbands and sons. Such conditions are entirely too ideal to ever be reached, as where one may be fairly reached the other is wholly lacking.

The normal person, properly trained, is able to eat and enjoy all kinds of food that are good and well cooked. There will be degrees of enjoyment, as some like one better than another, but the finical, fussy eater is largely so from bad training. If he is well, and thus, normal.

We all know what the artist said when asked with what he mixed his paints. We need more of that essential (brains) in all of our cooking and eating of foods.

The great majority of middle class and people of wealth eat too much—they live to eat. Then there are those who through indoor work or inactivity have no appetite and in consequence refuse to eat because they are not hungry.

Foods must be pleasant to the taste to increase the flow of the gastric juice, and as the eye is the first to receive impressions, food must be made attractive in appearance so that it will be tasted.

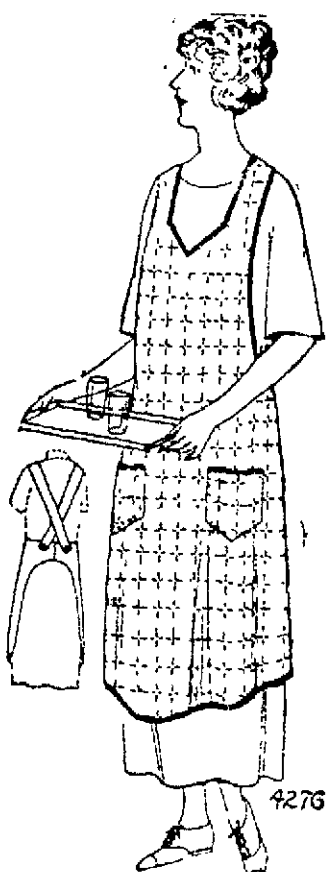

It has been proved too often to quote that worry and nervousness will retard or entirely stop the process of digestion, so, too, we need to put away everything of that sort, when possible, or wait to eat until more composed.

When judgment tells us that food is good and wholesome common sense will tell us to cultivate a liking for it.

We need roughage, like spinach or fibrous vegetables, or else the 20 feet of food canal will be idle and when idle there is always mischief, and we live in countless ways.

Fifteen cats, with one handsome feline named "June" as the central star, figure in a new "eternal triangle" brought to light by the suit for divorce filed in Fort Worth, Texas, by Ed Carr. On All Fools' Day, 1922, he married a woman who called herself "Mrs. Womack," though he now alleges that was not her true name. However, all went well until September 2, 1922, when "she" took in a bunch of cats upon which to lavish her affections. About one "June" she was extremely foolish. Adultery is the only solution of his domestic troubles, he declares in his suit.

FEW FACTS ABOUT RADIUM

Throws Off Sufficient Heat to Bring Its Own Weight of Water to Boiling Point.

Just about this time twenty-five years ago M. and Mme. Curie were making the experiments which resulted in the discovery of radium.

While our knowledge of the why and wherefore of radium has not materially increased since M. and Mme. Curie announced their momentous discovery, we have learned more particularly during the last year or two, a good deal of its vagaries and its possibilities in certain branches of medical research. Its potentialities as a whole, however, are still largely a matter of speculation.

Few people have seen radium, and perhaps fewer still recognize it at sight. A tube of radium comprises a piece of tube, behind which is fixed a tiny screen. In front is a magnifying glass, through which may be seen, on the tube, what looks like an infinitesimal yellow stain, not much bigger than the full stop at the end of this sentence. This little speck is radium, and it may be worth anything up to $50,000.

At night the little yellow stain is seen to glow brightly enough to be noticeable yards away. But, although the phenomenon reminds one of phosphorescence, it is very different in character. Phosphorescence is impermanent, whereas the radiation from radium may continue unimpaird for years, and possibly centuries.

Radium throws off sufficient heat to bring its own weight of water to boiling point every hour for a thousand years and more. Its emission of heat can neither be increased nor diminished. It has been tested in extremes of temperature, ranging from liquid air to super-heated braziers, without affecting its radiations in the slightest degree.

These are facts which, while not known to most people, have lately been ascertained by scientists, who are now busily engaged in trying to find a way of harnessing the apparently inexhaustible energy of radium.

Probably in ten years' time we shall not know much more than we do now of the reason why radium possesses these astonishing qualities, but it is more than likely that we shall have found a way of adapting them to our needs.

Not Allowed.

SECOND DISTRICT LITERACY TESTS

For New Voters in Southern Ulster Friday, October 20 and Friday, November 2.

John U. Gillette, district superintendent of schools, of the second supervisory district comprising the towns of Esopus, Gardiner, Lloyd, Marlborough, New Paltz, Plattekill and Shawangunk has designated the following places where the literacy tests may be taken and has appointed the following persons to conduct them:

State Normal School, New Paltz, Principal Lawrence H. Vandenberg, Public School No. 13, Port Ewen, Principal Mead Davis, Public School No. 4, Tuttlestown, Elizabeth Dubreuil, teacher, Public School No. 3, Highland, Principal Arthur Bridgman, Public School No. 3, Marlborough, Principal David D. Taylor, Public School No. 11, Clintondale, Principal Elliot Welsh, Public School No. 5, Wallkill, Principal Warren J. Gray.

Public school teachers in every school district are requested to acquaint the new voters, in their respective school districts, of the place and time where these literacy tests may be taken. Election inspectors and members of district committees can render similar service.

The regents rules and regulations state that election inspectors "before permitting a new voter to vote in election districts where personal registration is not required, must ascertain the literacy of the new voter as follows:

(a) The new voter must present a diploma or certificate showing that he is a graduate of an eighth grade elementary school or of a higher school where English is the language of instruction, or (b) the new voter must present a certificate of literacy issued under the rule and regulations of the board of regents of the state of New York.

W. H. Ford and James R. Lynch.

W. H. Ford, a New York real estate broker, is held on a charge of arson and murder in connection with the deaths of six persons in a fire which destroyed a frame dwelling house in Brooklyn. James R. Lynch, 25, an accountant, was held as a material witness. The police charge a diabolical crime, alleging Ford sought only the death of George F. Keim, his wealthy father-in-law, who boarded there. Ford and Keim, whose fortune was estimated at $500,000, has quarreled over business transactions. To kill Keim, the police allege, Ford killed five others.

The Judgment of Paris.
The judgment of Paris, is his awarding of the golden apple "to the most beautiful," but Paris does not base his award upon the merits of the case, for he awards the apple to Venus, not because she is the most beautiful, but because she promised him the most beautiful of women for wife. Paris, the judge, was bribed, and he paid dearly for it. In order to possess the most beautiful woman, Helen of Troy, he had to elope with another man's wife, and by so doing brought on his country a ruinous war in which he lost his own life. Probably the poet Homer intended to trace a moral lesson in all this.

KINGSTON, N. Y., OCT. 20, 1923.

OUR NEXT MAYOR

The Republican party, realizing that a man was needed at the head of the city government who held the best interests of the city at heart, has nominated Albert H. Cook as the man best fitted to carry on the progressive policies inaugurated under Republican administration. In the past ten years under Republican administration Kingston has steadily grown in importance until today it is one of the leading cities of its class in the state of New York. Its streets are the finest of any city its size in the state. Its public officials are men of known integrity and honesty. No scandal has marred its political history.

Under Republican administration the city has assumed its rightful place among the cities of the Hudson river valley. What Kingston was under Democratic administration is known to all. It is common knowledge that it was not until the Republican party was placed in charge of its affairs that the city assumed a leading position. In Albert H. Cook the Republican party has selected a man qualified to carry on the traditions of the city and to continue it in the front rank. He is thoroughly familiar with the needs of the city, and will give an honest and efficient business administration.

Kingston is growing, and will continue to grow. To foster its growth it needs men in charge of city affairs who may be depended upon to carry out the interests of the taxpayers. To carry out the progressive plans the city needs not only a Republican mayor but a Republican common council to assist him in his work. Those who have the best interests of the city at heart should vote for the entire Republican ticket from top to bottom.

James Lounsbury's record on behalf of the town of Rochester is too well known to need exploitation. Whenever he could do anything for Rochester or for his neighbors, he has gone to the front fearlessly. Few men in Ulster county public life have had wider experience. His service has been satisfactory to the people. Every constructive policy which would benefit the people, every progressive movement which the people have sought, has found a staunch supporter in Mr. Lounsbury. He has kept abreast of the times. He has shown himself a leader and not a follower. He has served his constituents faithfully and well. Good judgment has been combined with thorough business ability in procuring for the people what they wanted. His presence in the county legislature during the next two years will reflect credit upon the county and the town of Rochester. His nomination for the important office of supervisor is an honor to his town and to the Republican party, and his election to that office will mean two years of useful service to Rochester, which the town will never have reason to regret.

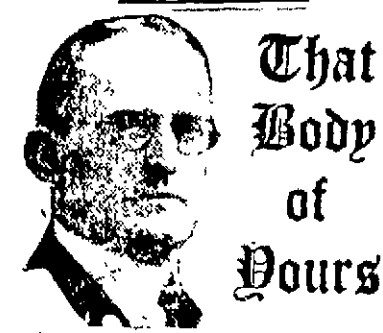

In the election of Herbert E. Thomas for supervisor of the First Ward, the Republican party showed its full confidence in one of the progressive young men of the ward who is well qualified to guard the important business interests of his ward, of the city and of the county. Mr. Thomas's ability has been demonstrated in many ways. His activity in all civic matters has given him full knowledge of the city and county business affairs. Of pleasing personality, Mr. Thomas during many years has come in contact with the voters of the ward and their experience with him redounds to his credit. His ability assures a representative in the county legislature who can be depended on to protect fully the rights of the city and county, and he will prove a most creditable supervisor. The importance of the First Ward requires an able representative and Mr. Thomas fills all requirements.

Some of the smaller New England ports attribute recent increases in their trade to the Panama Canal. Providence, Rhode Island, notes the arrival of two ships with six million feet of lumber, ten million shingles, and six carloads of canned goods from the Pacific Coast. It is assumed that the business would never have come to that port if it had not been for the canal. The waterway is a boon to the country in many ways—as a feature of our national defense, as a stimulant to trade with South America, in the reduction of price of the products of one coast in the markets of the other, and as a source of commerce to ports as far north as New England. The value gained from the construction of the canal cannot be determined, but it is far greater than the tolls collected.

It is estimated that 30,000 farms were abandoned in New England in the 10-year period preceding 1922. But there was never any suggestion from that quarter that the state or the nation should come to the aid of the farmers who had failed. Self reliance was the custom in those days, and it never occurred to the hardy New Englanders to beg a loan from the government or demand that the government hunt up some new markets for them or fix a price for their products above what the law of supply and demand warranted. If they failed at farming they tried something else without calling on the government, that is, the rest of the people, for help. Times have changed since then, but who shall say for the better?

Republicans of the town of Hurley for many years have been depended on to select for their town nominee the men of the highest character and ability, and again running true to form this year they have re-nominated Edgar Rowe for supervisor. While Hurley's history is a glorious one, it is not history which will keep down town expenses while keeping the town in the front rank of townships which are conducted in accordance with modern methods. Even now Hurley is making history, but it is history of economic advancement and constructive progress. Supervisor Rowe has shown himself well qualified to take the lead in these matters and his record as supervisor during the past two years is an open book whose pages contain no ugly or disagreeable blot. He has been devoted to the interests of the town and his knowledge and experience gained through two years of work will be valuable factors in carrying on the work of the town for two years more. A faithful and satisfactory public servant should be retained if efficient results are expected, and Supervisor Rowe's majority on election day should show that the people of Hurley appreciate public work by which they are so surely benefited.

"JUST A COLD."
 I have often felt that if a few people were to die directly from a cold perhaps some attention would be paid to the ordinary everyday cold that comes to almost everybody at times.

You'll hear the expression "Oh, he just caught a little cold, didn't think anything about it and then it seemed to be more like grippe, and when the doctor came it had developed into pneumonia, perhaps rheumatism, or some kidney condition".

Now you've seen a "cold" go round the family circle, the office staff, the factory, the school or any other place where people congregate.

Doesn't that suggest anything to you?

Of course it does, and your common sense tells you that a cold can be passed along just like any other condition.

I don't agree with some of our writers who laugh at the idea of dampness, cold winds, overwork, or lack of sleep as causing a cold. I believe these very things are directly the cause of it.

Well, we all have within us, most of the ordinary organisms that are supposed to cause trouble. Just as long as we are in good shape, do not overeat or undereat, get proper rest and so forth, we meet the ordinary conditions of life all right.

Then we get our feet wet, get exposed to severe weather or to overwork, and as our resistance is lowered the "cold" gets its chance to assert itself. Then we go into a crowded street car, factory, or office, and although other people may be in fair shape the very crowding of the place so poisons the air, that when we breathe our even more unfit air, or breathe into the atmosphere we have practically poisoned it for the other people.

You know that colds and all the diseases of childhood light up, once the children return to school.

Now what am I trying to suggest? That if you feel anything like a cold coming on, that you get to bed, take a hot bath and drinks, stay in the house for a day or two, and keep away from other people.

The reason is two fold. This ordinary cold may open the way for something more serious if you do not take hold of it immediately. And further, you are doing the proper thing by your neighbor or workmate by not exposing him to it. Because with him a common cold might mean a serious illness.

GETTING READY FOR ICE HARVEST

The Knickerbocker Ice Company is getting its ice houses in this section ready for next winter. The heavy snowfall of last winter caused the collapse of part of the roof of the big house at High Hook, and this summer the company's men have been busy warping down the ice house and selling the lumber in the New York market.

The past summer has been a poor one as far as ice was concerned. There was but little real warm weather and little ice was demanded. The Knickerbocker Ice Company has now about 65,000 tons of ice from last winter's crop still on hand.

LALDLAW SAYS KINGSTON CITIZENS AVERTED EPIDEMIC

Correspondence of Smallpox Cases Here Among Biggs' Last Business.

"Health News," the monthly bulletin of the state department of health, in its latest issue says that through the prompt action of the city officials and the general cooperation of the citizens, the city of Kingston has been saved from what threatened to be an epidemic of smallpox. The letter of Dr. Frank A. Johnston, the then health officer of this city to the late Dr. Herman M. Biggs in which he gives all credit to Dr. Frank Laidlaw, sanitary supervisor of this district, is reproduced, together with the Kingston health board's resolution tendering a vote of thanks to Dr. Laidlaw for his work here.

Dr. Laidlaw's comment on being shown the letter was "The entire credit is due the people of Kingston. Nobody could have averted an epidemic if the whole body of citizens and the educational department had not promptly rallied about the local board of health at the first warning of danger."

It is noted that the Kingston situation is of peculiar interest to the department as Mrs. Biggs has made it known that the correspondence and resolutions regarding it is the last matter pertaining to the department which she was able to bring to the attention of Dr. Biggs, who was then commissioner.

Dr. Laidlaw is now district state health officer.

Pity the Man With A Headache

Weekly Health Talk
 By Froude & Mac Kinnon, D's. C.

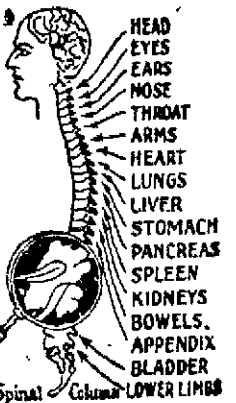

Don't feel that the man who tells you, "I have a headache this morning," is complaining about a trivial thing. Energy, strength, enjoyment, all go when the dull throb begins to beat away in the brain. "Like a thousand little devils pounding on my head with sledges," is one sufferer's method of describing a headache.

As time runs on, headaches become more and more frequent. The cause is a misalignment of the spinal joints, which places a pressure upon the nerves to the stomach and to the liver. The chiropractor adjusts the spine, releases the nerves from the bone pressure, so that they are able to function normally. The organs respond to the normal stimulus and the road to recovery is open.

WANTS OTHERS TO PROFIT.

"I am writing this in hope that others may profit by my experience. I had nervous headaches, indigestion and inflammatory rheumatism, all of which every remedy I tried failed to relieve. Chiropractic spinal adjustments put me back on my feet and at work once more."—A. W. Carter, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 12337.

MONTECATI HEIGHTS.

Montecati Heights, Oct. 20.—The many friends of the mail carrier, Harry Smith, of Pataunkunk, who has served so faithfully for almost a year, will regret his leaving the route to assume the duties of mail clerk, to which he has been recently appointed. Solomon Uffratt and helpers have been hauling home his hay purchased from the Decker farm at Montecati the past week.

Miss Florence Lennon and friend of Kingston made their regular weekly visit to her home in this place on Saturday.

Mrs. Elijah Coddington, who was taken suddenly ill Monday, is in a serious condition at this writing.

Don't Get Bald Cuticura Does Much To Prevent It

Dandruff, itching and scalp irritation point to an unhealthy condition of the scalp which leads to falling hair and premature baldness. Frequent shampooing with Cuticura Soap does much to prevent such a condition, especially if preceded by a gentle exfoliating with Cuticura Ointment.

JAPANESE ARE GOOD FLYERS

Head of British Air Mission Is of Opinion That They Positively Have No Nerves.

A rather curious report current two or three years ago with reference to Japanese aviation is recalled by an interview in London with the Master of Sempill, who has just returned after spending many months as head of the British air mission to Japan. The suggestion was that Japanese could not be made into good aviators because of something in their early upbringing, one point being that because they were carried pick-a-back in infancy they had somehow lost their sense of equilibrium. In support of this it was pointed out that many accidents had happened in Japan, and even today it is conceded that they have produced no outstanding flyers.

The statement, however that they do not make good aviators is disproved by the Master of Sempill, who describes them as pupils leaving little to be desired and the standard achieved by pilots throughout the naval air force as being very high. In fact, one report of the interview credits him with the statement that it is higher than in the British naval air force. The Japanese are said to be ready to try anything and to have no trace of nerves. All this makes a very different story from that which became common property shortly after the armistice, and there seems now no doubt that hypothesis outran fact.—North China Herald.

This Prisoner Was Fastidious.

Recently a prisoner was sent to the county jail, after having faced the county court and been duly given a fine of $10 and a sentence of 30 days in the local bastille on a charge of being drunk in a public place.

Taken to his new boarding house, this man immediately began to complain of his surroundings, and very promptly informed Jailor J. L. Jenkins that he would not eat the bacon, beans, potatoes, and such other food as is commonly served to those who find themselves for the time being forced to be Mr. Jenkins' guests, but that he wanted and must have fried chicken.

Mr. Jenkins, always ready to do everything in his power for a guest, gravely informed the complainant that sometimes they had fried chicken for the prisoners and that if he would only remain long enough he would be sure to get what he wanted along that line.

Mr. Jenkins expects that soon the prisoners will be asking for felt mattresses, ice cream, cold drinks and electric fans.—Greenville (Mo.) Leader.

Hunt for Animal Provokers.

Did you know that Uncle Sam maintains a standing army of big game hunters whose duty it is to protect the live stock of the country by killing off predatory animals?

This army is under the direction of the United States biological survey. Last year they shot, poisoned or trapped more than 90,000 wild animals in stock-raising sections. In seven years their rifles have brought down more than 380,000 stock-killing beasts, and they are credited with saving $35,000,000 worth of domestic live stock.

A veteran of this service is Ben V. Lily, of New Mexico, who is seventy years old and has been a big game hunter for 60 years. Lily has killed more than 500 mountain lions, and official estimates show that his campaigns against wild animals have saved stockmen in the West many thousands of dollars annually for years.—Popular Science Monthly.

As We Progress.

It was in the year 1925. A New York matron, coming down to breakfast, met her only son ascending the stairs. He was headed for the roof, where his fast airplane awaited him. "Where to, Tommy?" asked the matron.

"Denver for lunch, mother."

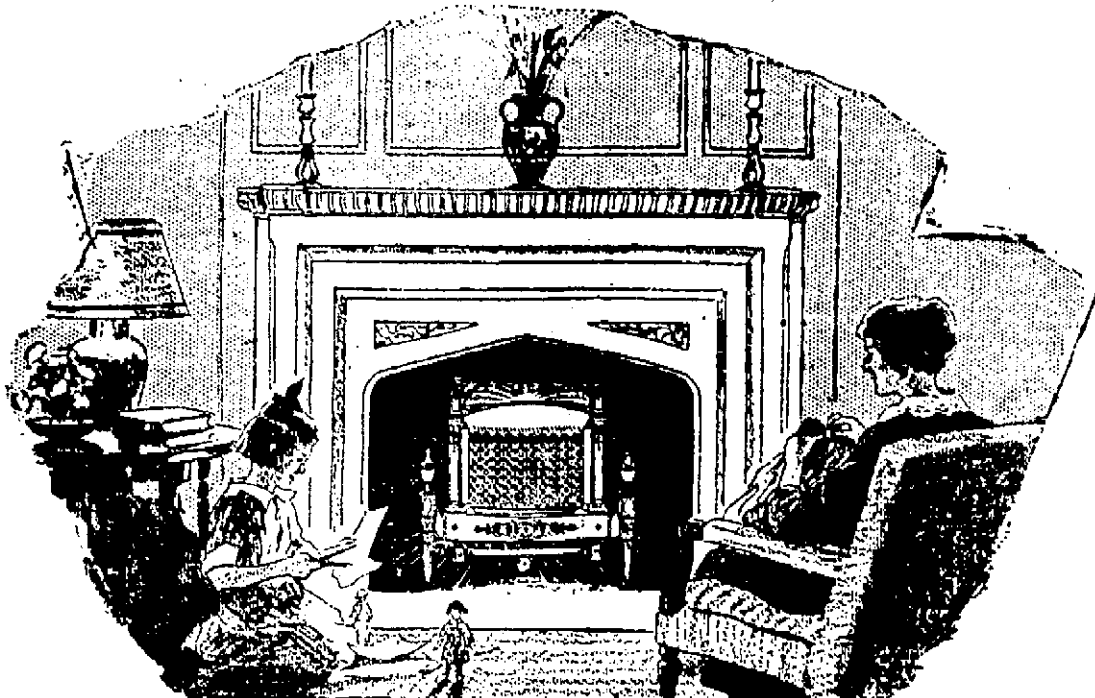

"Well, you have a perfect day for flying."

"That is what I thought. So from Denver I may hop off to San Francisco for a little golf."

"Very well, my son. But be home early for dinner."

Differ in Glory

Clayton B. Boy, an authority on diamonds, has found a striking difference of the phosphorescence of Brazilian diamonds and those from the Cape. The former, which are noted for the richness of their light, and which have become quite rare of late years, exhibit a brilliant phosphorescence after being exposed to the radiation of a magnetic ribbon, while Cape diamonds in similar circumstances show very little or no phosphorescence. This is thought to be a means of detecting diamonds lately termed as Brazilian gems.

The Born Countryman.

It is difficult, likely impossible, to determine how far the born countryman is susceptible to the beauty of his surroundings—to the cloud-shadows on the hills, the ripple in the red wheat, the sun-gleam on coppice and hedgerow, to the autumn's feeble glow; yet I know that he does not. He has seen his eye gleam as he noted them, and I know, too, that it is not possible for one so weatherwise and weather-wary not to value that which he reads so profoundly and studies day by day with ever fresh application. Townspeople are too apt to argue from expression; but expression is just what the countryman lacks. A thing is felt, pondered, stored up; the thought lies too deep for tears, or laughter either; and certainly is not stuff for minor poetry. "You enjoy talking about it; I enjoy letting it soak in"; as the gypsy woman said to the tourist about the sunset.—Maurice Hewlett.

African Termites.

Before the Biological society, in London, a naturalist described his studies of the African termites, or white ants. Certain individuals in every nest have no other apparent function except that of fighters or soldiers. Some have a long beak, from which they eject an acid corrosive fluid; others inspire terror by making a loud clicking noise with their mandibles; but they neither shoot nor bite. One singular observation of the naturalist was that the soldier ants, which rush out to defend an attacked nest, do not return to the nest, but wander about, and soon perish from exposure to the outside air.

Brave Queen Bess.

Nearly a thousand vessels pass Tilbury, England, every day, where a Sailors' Rest has just been opened by the British and Foreign Sailors' society. The Thames is very deep here, and the docks offer special facilities to craft of every kind. From the largest Australian liners to the humblest cargo boat. It was here that Queen Elizabeth reviewed her troops in 1558, when the Armada invasion was threatened, using the memorable words, "I know I have the body of a weak, feeble woman, but I have the heart and stomach of a king, and of a king of England, too."

Cold Greater Than Arctic.

Cold, many times lower than any temperature found existing naturally on the face of the earth, is used in making helium for the government's balloons and dirigibles. By a secret process, natural gas subjected to tremendous pressure turns to liquid at 317 degrees below zero, and the helium is drawn off. To change nitrogen gas into a solid would require a temperature of 233 degrees below zero. A pile of raw iron subjected to such freezing would shatter to bits. If dropped on a hard floor, while a pencil would burst into splinters.—Popular Mechanics.

Nest of Conflict.

A lady writes from Boscawen, Eng., to "Bird Notes and News": "I wish you could have seen a chaffinch's nest that one of the caretakers showed me. It was built near the railway station, and a cat had pulled it down. We thought at first it had the usual fichen and moss on the outside, but closer examination showed the fichen to be white conflict, with jagged edges, and the moss was the green bast used to tie up flowers, all woven in and wrinkled up to resemble moss. There had evidently been a wedding party at the station."

Settlement 7,000 Years Old.

Numerous flint implements, bone harpoons, arrowheads, grindstones, chisels and tooth-headed spears have been discovered in the remains of a settlement at Holmegardsmos, Denmark. It is estimated the settlement is at least 7,000 years old. Although no human bones have yet been found, the excavators uncovered skeletons of elk, reindeer and other animals under a layer of peat several yards thick.

Seat of Emotion, Indeed.

"In short, ladies and gentlemen," said the orator, "I only say—I beg to assure you—that I wish I had a window in my bosom, that you might see the emotions of my heart."

POULTRY

Real Meaning of Term "Sports" Not Understood

The real meaning of the term "sports," as applied to fowls, is not quite understood by a good many poultry keepers. Now, in breeding many varieties there will often come a chicken that is contrary to the parent birds, and the reason for this sometimes seems very strange.

For example, those who have bred Silver Laced Wyandottes know that frequently a white one, and occasionally a black one, will be produced, and it was the breeding together of these so-called sports that gave us the two distinct colors, the White Wyandotte and the Black Wyandotte. As we know them today. Where very lightly laced birds are used there is a greater tendency to white, and just the opposite when a very heavily laced bird is used, the sport here coming black. Partridge Wyandottes will also throw a few white ones, and those who breed them in big quantities will produce perhaps four or five white ones during the year.

Another common example of "sports" is found in the fact that oftentimes a rose comb breed will throw a single comb fowl. There is always an occasional tendency in this direction, and it does not prove that the parent stock is bad, nor that it does not measure up to the required purebred standard. Many of our present-day breeds are the results of working from sports. The black Plymouth came first from the barred, and for years no one ever heard of a male chicken coming black, these being all females. Today we have a distinct breed known as the Black Rock.

It is probable that all of our more than a hundred modern varieties of poultry descended from the one kind of original jungle fowl. In fact, most of our now numerous varieties have been created during the past 40 or 50 years. The old breeds, like the Black Langshans, do not often produce sports, for the reason that they have been bred pure for many hundreds of years, perhaps for thousands of years. But modern breeds, such as the Orpingtons, Rhode Island Reds, etc., are given to producing sports.

Movable Roosting Coops Good for Young Fowls

When the chicks are old enough to leave the brood coops and when they are weaned from broody hens or brooders, they grow so rapidly that they need more room. To meet this requirement, poultrymen use what are known as roosting coops. These are structures about six feet long, three feet wide, three feet high in front and two feet high at the rear. They have waterproof roofs, but the front side and one end, or the front side and two ends, are covered with wire so that the air can circulate through freely in warm weather, but hostile animals cannot get in.

To keep out driving rains or for use in cooler weather, particularly when the chicks are first put in and the nights are chilly, curtains of cloth or burlap are attached to the tops of the open sides so that they can be rolled down and fastened to protect the chicks when necessary. The curtain covering each side is made separate from the others so that much or little space may be left open according to requirements and according to which way the wind blows or the storm drives.

These little buildings should be movable and it is a good plan to place them on skids with rounded ends so that they can be drawn from place to place, thus affording a fresh new location every day or two. Many poultry keepers block up these little houses so that there is a space between the floor and the ground which affords a cool, shady place for the chicks during hot days.

Poultry Notes

Don't crowd; better sell some of the birds and make room.

When lice come into the hen house, profit usually goes out.

Lately chicks come from the eggs laid by hens of good breeding and vitality.

A hen that will lay during the fall shows her persistence and value as a good producer.

Ducklings need plenty of fresh water in dishes deep enough for them to wash their eyes and nostrils.

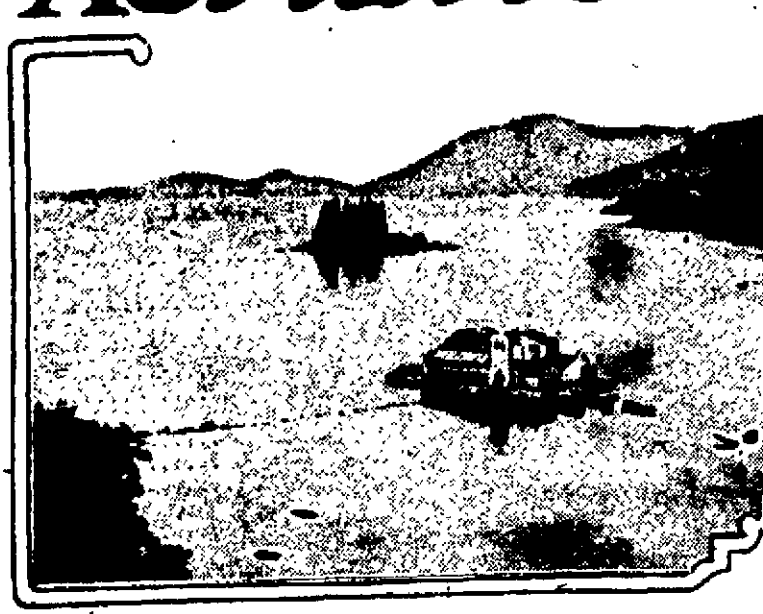

Oatmeal and buttermilk, either fresh or in the dried form, are two of the best developers for growing chicks.

The warm-weather chick is not of so robust a type, as a rule, as the early one, the parent stock often being run down and less vigorous.

Vigorous breeding stock is the first essential for healthy chicks, but sometimes when a good start is made, neglect and improper care work havoc.

Duck eggs and ducklings are more readily available, and about 20 cents apiece is a fair price for fresh eggs. Ducklings can be shipped fairly successfully.

Key to the Adriatic

The Ship of Ulysses in the Harbor of Corfu.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

The recent occupation of the island of Corfu by Italy was on the face of it the taking by force of Greek territory by an alien nation; but the island has been cuffed about and battered back and forth so continually through the centuries that half a dozen nations, including Italy, might lay claim to it on the plea of former ownership.

Corfu is one of the parts of the lock that secures the Adriatic sea at its narrow neck from the Ionian sea and the open waters of the Mediterranean. It lies like a watch-tower in the Ionian sea before the narrowing entrance of the Strait of Otranto. To the north of it a rugged finger of Albanian mountain-land reaches out into the sea, and bending back, forms the splendid naval harbor of Arona, one of the golden hopes of Austrian and Italian ambitions. To the northwest of Corfu, the long Italian heel cuts out into the waters of the Ionian sea.

Corfu is shaped somewhat like a sickle or a rough crescent, the points or horns of which are toward the Greek mainland. The northern point jacks only two miles of meeting the mainland, but the southern point is some ten miles offshore. The bulge of water which Corfu and the mainland almost make into a lake forms a wonderful land-locked roadstead which has played its part in naval affairs for two millenniums.

The town and harbor of Corfu are on the east side of the island on the shore of this roadstead across which some twelve or fifteen miles away rises the rough shore of Epirus. In the harbor is the little bustling isle of Vido, which has often been heavily fortified by its various owners.

Home Told Its Beauties.

Bathed in Mediterranean sunshine, with a rather dry climate for a considerable period of the year, the island of Corfu has always been considered a pleasure spot; and it failed to lose this reputation even when the siltling up of a number of arms of the sea and the formation of stagnant lakes brought malaria to some of the lowlands.

Home describes the island as a sort of paradise in the dim days of Greek beginnings. He makes it out an idyllic lotus-land of beautiful people and beautiful scenery with an abundance of figs and grapes and other fruits.

The island first emerges in history as the site of Corcyra, a city founded only a few miles from the present town of Corfu by colonists from Corinth. The date of Corcyra's birth is set at 734 B. C.—twenty-six centuries ago. The colony grew rapidly in wealth, in maritime power, and into a confident spirit of independence. Corcyra's fleet, protected in its wonderful roadstead, grew strong, and in 664 B. C. fought with its mother-city, Corinth, the first recorded Greek naval battle. Corinth won; but before long Corcyra was again independent. When a second dispute arose with Corinth, Corcyra allied itself with Athens.

When the great fleet of Athens and her allies was on the way to Syracuse there was held in the roadstead of Corcyra a review of what was probably the greatest concentration of naval strength up to that time. Again, in 1571, the same roadstead was the gathering place for another great world navy, the combined fleets of Venice, Spain and the pope, which sailed from there to the battle of Lepanto, in which they crushed the rising and formidable naval power of Turkey.

PAPYRUS RACES ABOUT 4 O'CLOCK

Seems Evenly Matched With Zev—Winner Gets $80,000—Grandstand Seats Sold Out at $22 Each—Track Heavy.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 20.—This afternoon at Belmont Park Papyrus, the English horse who came over to this country first class, will race Zev to see whether or not he goes back to sea.

They will be guided by the most expert hands of the two continents. Earl Sands, premier American jockey, will have the leg upon Zev; Steve Donoghue, pride and joy of all England, will ride Papyrus as he did in the colt's great effort at Epsom Downs. Small even for a jockey, he almost to middle age, weakened to the resemblance to a coconut shell and bowlegged as a parenthesis, Donoghue has absolutely dominated the turf abroad. He has the unusual record of having ridden five Derby winners, three of them hand running.

Even in appearance Zev and Papyrus are almost as one. Both are fifteen hands three inches in height. Each is so dark as to be almost black and a white blaze streaks their foreheads. The similarity of them in fact, might defy mutual recognition were it not for the fact that Zev will go to the post in blinders, his head hooded like a monkey.

Of the purse of $100,000 offered by August Belmont and his concerns, the sum of $80,000 will go to the winner. In addition to a gold cup placed perpetually in competition. The loser gets $20,000 and the sympathy of the thoroughbred universe.

The race, according to present plans, will be put on about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, being the fourth race on a program of six.

Arrangements to take care of a crowd of 100,000 are not believed to be the outcome of exaggerated optimism by those behind the event. In fact, interest here and elsewhere is almost feverish and the prospect of fair skies is taken to mean that the race will play host to all the customers the turnstiles can stand.

Seats in the grandstand, at the mere pittance of $22 each, were not to be had this morning. It was said, the same applied to club house reservations, sold at a similar rate. The lady house lawn also has found much favor at $2 a ticket while the infield will be turned over to the housegoats at the general admission price of $1.50.

A "rate" of a half million dollars is entirely possible under these conditions. This would mean a tidy profit for the promoters, who are alleged to have spent $200,000 in making the race possible.

New York, Oct. 20.—Weather conditions for the international horse race at Belmont Park track this afternoon between Zev, of America, and Papyrus, of England, will be cloudy and cooler, the weather bureau predicted today.

The track is expected to be wet and heavy as it rained most of last night. The sun came out this morning, however, giving an indication that the track may be better than anticipated.

Register and enroll before 10 to-night.

MUDDY FIELD CHEERS TIGERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 20.—The elements joined forces with Bill Roper today in Princeton's first meeting with Knute Rockne's Notre Dame eleven. A muddy field, assuring a heavy, slippery ball, gave courage to the Tigers.

Enthusiasm at Old Nassau reached fever pitch. The meeting with Notre Dame took on the aspect of a clash of the "big three." Roper announced his regular line-up with the exception of Caldwell at center, would be sent into the battle.

The contest, despite the muddy field, soaked with the heavy rain of last night, was almost certain to be largely an aerial attack from both goals.

Roper, since his scouts returned from the Notre Dame victory over the Army last Saturday has devoted his every effort to the perfecting of a new passing game. His line has been drilled to a speedier get away. The Tiger play is expected to center almost entirely around Captain Snively, at left half.

Roper, however is working under somewhat of a handicap. He may not want to reveal his entire bag of tricks. To do so would be fatal as it would jeopardize Princeton in coming contests with Yale and Harvard.

Notre Dame is confident. A victory over Princeton—the second eastern eleven to be tackled in eight days—will stamp the Indiana invaders the super team of the October season. Rockne is expected to show everything Notre Dame has—an attack and defense the equal of anything ever seen in the east.

Both coaches indicated these would be their line ups for the contest:

Princeton	Position	Notre Dame
Drews	Left End	Collins
L. Bergen	Center	Walsh
Howard	Right Guard	Kizer
Limery	Right tackle	Obers
Scout	Right end	Murphy
Shinsmore	Quarterback	Stuhldreher
Snively	Left half back	Crowley
Croft	Right half back	D. Miller
Van Gerbig	Full-back	Layden

TODAY'S GAMES ON THE GRIDIRON

Notre Dame-Princeton Contest, With Former Favorite, Draws Most Attention—Pittsburgh Plays Syracuse at New York.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 20.—Notre Dame and Princeton were in the football spotlight today, taking the play from such thrilling gridiron prospects as Pittsburgh-Syracuse; Cornell-Colgate; Penn State-Navy, and Pennsylvania-Columbia.

Knute Rockne's South Bend Catholics, light, tricky, powerful and daring if for no other reason than they meet two of the most powerful elevens in the east on successive Saturdays, hold the imagination of the east itself and the hopes of all the United States west of the Alleghenies on Princeton's field today.

On form the smooth working machine from the west is favored to win. Only Princeton's traditional fighting spirit and ability to rise to strange heights when hardest pressed gives the Tigers an even break in the opinion of the populace.

The Yankee Stadium will entertain these traditional enemies, Pittsburgh and Syracuse, and New York will witness what probably will be the most smashing contest of the season. Koen football students say that Syracuse has the most powerful team in the east but they said that last week about the Army. Glen Warner's pupils have many followers who predict for them something better than an even break. They have won five of their previous games from the big Orange team.

Colgate, until its tie game last week with Ohio State revealed defensive weakness, was counted one of the leading teams of the east and expected to play Gil Dobie's Cornellians to a standstill. However Cornell is expected to win today at Ithaca with Dobie's old fashioned game about as good as usual, which is good enough for most occasions.

The Pennsylvania-Columbia game will be chiefly a test of the Houghton system. The former Harvard mentor has not been having exactly a successful season. Pennsylvania has not shown any remarkable strength yet, either, and the battle should be fairly close with the Quakers having whatever edge there is.

The Navy will invade Penn State in its mountain stronghold and few are so bold as to predict the outcome. Neither is quite up to the standard of former years.

In the west the outstanding games are Michigan-Ohio State at Ann Arbor and Illinois-Iowa at Iowa City. The results will go far toward shaping the big ten race. In the middle west Kansas and Nebraska hold the center of the stage.

The Pacific coast circuit, where California's supremacy is questioned by Southern California, offers no major games. California is not expected to encounter much difficulty with the Oregon Aggies. Southern California should stop Washington and Stanford has a workout with Occidental.

Vanderbilt and Texas will thrill the old south at Austin and Georgia Tech will extend old fashioned hospitality to the Georgetown aggregation. Kentucky may face Maryland, with a victory over Pennsylvania, more than it can handle. Georgia-Tennessee and Alabama-Sewanee round out a good day's schedule below the Mason and Dixon Line.

When it's Wrong to Bat, "It's wrong to bet on a horse race," said Uncle Eben, "specially for a man whose judgment ain't no better than his morals."
